

09/084007

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A camera is provided with a photographing element for converting photoelectrically image information of a object into electrical signals and for outputting first image data; first image processor for converting the first image data into second image data in first format; second image processor for converting third image data in second format different from the first format into fourth image data in third format different from the first format and the second format; and third image processor for converting the first image data into fifth image data in the third format.

05084007-052698